

Sacrifice Secures Success

Fr. Jino Thomas
Principal

Great Achievement is born of Great Sacrifice

The phrase "Great achievement is born of great sacrifice" serves as a reminder that the road to success is rarely without challenges, setbacks, or sacrifices. It highlights the dedication, perseverance, and resilience necessary to overcome obstacles and accomplish extraordinary things. Let us remember that sacrifice is not limited to monumental gestures alone. Even small sacrifices, such as giving up leisure time to study, helping others in need, or sacrificing personal desires for the collective good, can pave the way for greatness.

In every significant accomplishment, there lies an underlying story of sacrifice. Whether it is in the realm of science, arts, sports, or any other field, individuals who have achieved greatness have often made tremendous sacrifices to attain their goals. Sacrifice can come in various forms: time, effort, personal desires, comfort, and even relationships. It is the willingness to give up something valuable in pursuit of a higher purpose that distinguishes extraordinary achievements from ordinary ones.

One of the most notable examples of great achievement born of great sacrifice is that of the scientific genius, Marie Curie. Born in Poland in 1867, Curie devoted her life to the study of radioactivity. Her groundbreaking research led to the discovery of two new elements, polonium and radium, and she became the first woman to win a Nobel Prize. Curie's success was not without sacrifice. Her relentless dedication to her work exposed her to hazardous radiation, which ultimately led to her premature death. Her sacrifice, however, paved the way for groundbreaking discoveries and transformed the field of science forever.

Similarly, we can draw inspiration from the life of Nelson Mandela, a visionary leader and an icon of freedom. Mandela spent 27 years in prison, enduring immense hardships, fighting against apartheid in South Africa. His sacrifice for the cause of equality and justice laid the foundation for a democratic and inclusive society.

In conclusion, the concept of "Great Achievement Born of Great Sacrifice" stands as a testament to the human spirit and the extraordinary capabilities we possess. It reminds us that remarkable accomplishments do not come without sacrifice.

It is a time when July begins
It is a time when our heart wings
It is a feeling with true prayer
Towards the God to bless you with care
A millions of stars up in the sky
But you shine the brightest in my eyes
You are not just our Principal
You are truly our Father

I just want to tell you today
I hope you have wonderful birthday
I hope all your wishes and dreams
Intend true because my heart has love for you

These are words with emotions,
This is not just a song
This is a true desire for you.
