In all its Glory, Let Jeevan Pravah begin!

Fr. Jino Thomas MCBS
Principal

Today, we stand at the confluence of memories, aspirations, and accomplishments. It's a celebration of the ebbs and flows, the highs and lows that have sculpted us into the individuals we are today. As we embark on this annual day celebration, let us immerse ourselves in the richness of our shared journey. Just like a river carries the echoes of the places it has been, let our stories resonate in the corridors of time. May the tributaries of our efforts merge into a powerful current, propelling us forward with renewed enthusiasm and purpose.

So, in all its glory, let the "Jeevan Pravah" begin—a celebration that encapsulates the essence of life's continuous flow. As we navigate through the program, let us savour the chapters we've written, acknowledge the challenges overcome, and anticipate the unwritten pages awaiting us. Here's to the beauty of our collective journey, to the ebb and flow of experiences, and to the vibrant tapestry of life that binds us together. May this annual day be a tribute to the resilience, growth, and shared moments that define our unique

"Jeevan Pravah."

An anchor is just a piece of metal that used to prevent ships from drifting away because of currents or strong winds. Anchors of Jeevan Pravah were a representation of willpower, courage, self-motivation and all other virtues that prevent audience from drifting the pathway of Jeevan Parvah.

If there is one thing that is still raw and honest and full of soul. It's live music. We love it in every form because live performance brings with it a new story, story of desire, determination and dedication. And by being in the performance of that story, it has become part of ours as well.

Dance has been used for centuries to invoke the God and to please him. A Rangapooja is an event where the Guru and disciple celebrate and seek the Grace of God. The Rangapooja performance by Grade X students not only invoked His blessings but also it took the audience to the dizzy heights of spiritual experience. Their stunning performance in tune with the mellifluous melody and the profound lyrics of the song made the Jeevan Pravah an inner voice of audience's life.

Dance with hundreds of names such that you have a glance over me. My thought is continuously to give you a harathi. I am anxious to request such that you bless. I have worshipped you making my body as a temple; I have served you with all life and feeling. I folded my hands to thee, goddess of dance, Queen of us all. It is your duty to protect the needy; won't you listen to my request? With this confidence we begin. ....

Green Symphony

Nature is our gentlest mother, never leaves us, always right beside of us, and sees us more than anyone else. Nothing satisfies like nature. You can exhaust everything that man has built up but only nature will truly bring out from their torpid recesses the affinities of a man or women with the open air, the trees, fields, the changes of seasons- the sun by day and the stars of heaven by night and she brings us back to who we truly are.

And I will make them and the places round about my hill a blessing, and I will cause the shower to come down in his season, there shall be showers of blessings.

We can pray to God because He promises to rain His benefits down upon us 'Showers of Blessing'. With this hope, let Jeevan Pravah begin

Two Pillars of Mary Matha
Thank you very much fathers for giving us Jeevanpravah

An event like Jeevanpravah cannot happen overnight. The wheels start rolling months ago. It requires planning and a bird's eye for details. We have been fortunate enough to be backed by a core team of very proactive and dedicated staff of Mary Matha, who are well versed in their job. I am short of words for their involvement and their willingness to take on the completion of tasks beyond their comfort zones. With a deep sense of appreciation, I thank our loving teachers for their untiring efforts.

I would like to thank our budding rock stars that made this event joyful with their impressive performances. Your days of hard work were evident in your acts. You are not only good at academics but also in extracurricular activities. We value you and every moment that you stay in this temple of learning.

Thank you very much
